ABA Parent training: Essential tools for Behavior Analysts and ABA providers

Abstract:

In this workshop you will learn essential tools for parent training. Behavior Technicians and Behavior Analysts can all benefit from this workshop. Developing and implementing a client-specific Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP) is crucial for the success of the client progress. If parents/caregivers are trained in the steps of the BIP, generalization takes place and the opportunities for progress are more readily available.

In addition, when parents/caregivers are trained in the essential components of ABA such as families). Currently she is involved in research towards the effectiveness of ABA Telehealth.

Ca REGISTER of ABA Works located in California, USA, ABA Center International located in Amsterdam, and ABA Courses located in Nevada, USA. Campbell is the first BCBA in the Netherlands who successfully combined ABA treatment and education, with two learners diagnosed with Autism.

Campbell uses Organizational Behavior Management to motivate her teams towards success and she is passionate in developing effective tools for Behavior Analysts and Behavior Technicians to succeed in the field. Campbell continues to develop tools for social skills training for children and adults, parent training, staff development, and vocational skills.

CALL FOR PAPPERS

In certain countries, learners do not receive sufficient ABA services, due to various reasons.

By teaching Behavior Technicians and Behavior Analysts the most effective tools to make ABA parent training work, we can dramatically increase the impact on the learners.

Learning objectives – after this workshop participants will be able to:

1. Describe the effects of parent/caregiver training
2. Describe how to motivate parents/caregivers to engage in parent/caregiver training
3. Identify the essential tools for ABA parent training related to the Behavior Intervention Plan (BIP)
4. Identify the essential tools for ABA parent training related to the ABA basic strategies
